Sure enough, the image of John McAfee with Vice's editor-in-chief Rocco Castoro contains EXIF data that reveals, amongst other things, the GPS latitude and longitude co-ordinates of where it was taken.

Presumably whoever took the photo on their iPhone 4S had forgotten to turn off location services.

exif:GPSImgDirection: 54424/255
exif:GPSImgDirectionRef: T exif:GPSLatitude: 15,39,49N
exif:GPSLongitude: 88,59,53W
exif:GPSTimeStamp: 2012-12-03T18:25:26Z

Those co-ordinates suggest that John McAfee was photographed in Guatemala, having crossed the Belize border.

The image is a screenshot of the Facebook page for 'fyens.dk'. The page layout includes a top navigation bar with the Facebook logo, a search bar, and user information. The left sidebar contains the page's name 'fyens.dk', its handle '@fyensdk', and a list of navigation options: Home, Posts, Videos, Events, About, Photos, Likes, Services, Notes, and Manage Tabs. A green 'Create a Page' button is at the bottom of this sidebar. The main content area features a large cover photo of a pond with many seagulls. Below the photo are buttons for 'Liked', 'Following', 'Edit Page Info', 'Contact Us', and 'Message'. A status update bar allows users to post text, photos, videos, or live videos. Below this is a search bar with the placeholder text 'Search for posts on this Page', which is circled in red. The 'Posts' section shows a shared post from 'Vores Odense' about a council decision in Odense. The right sidebar contains the page's description 'Broadcasting & Media Production Company in Odense, Denmark', a link to a subscriber service, and a section for likes, showing 31,248 likes from Puk Falkenberg and 87 other friends. An 'About' section with a 'See All' link is at the bottom right.

Facebook Graph Search Generator by Henk van Ess, GUI made by Tormund Gerhardsen

1. Getting started

What is Facebook Graph Search, and why does this page exist?

Facebook Graph Search is a powerful search engine that lets everyone play around with Facebooks "big data". It only shows you what is already accessible to you (at least that's what Facebook claims), but in a structured and simple way that has been met by a lot of concerns about privacy. Especially since it can reveal things you might not think you had access to.

History

When I did a keynote for Nordic Media Conference in Norway early 2016, I asked the public if some one could improve my GUI of <http://graph.tips> Tormund Gerhardsen came up with the idea to simplify the input. Read more on Wikipedia.

Set the language of your Facebook to English (US)

At the moment, Facebook Graph Search is only available for United States with English (US) language selected. However, anyone can change to English (US) by going to "Settings" -> "Language" in the upper right corner on Facebook. And search results will still show up from the entire Facebook database!

Why not just type names directly in the search bar?

Well, a lot of stuff can have the same name. Everything on Facebook (people, places, events, etc.) have a unique ID, a so called UID. This is simply just a number, but very important to get the search accurate. And to get the UID for a person, use the persons unique username from the URL.

2. Add people by username

<input type="text" value="Username (required)"/>	<input type="text" value="Real name (optional)"/>	<input type="button" value="Add"/>
--	---	------------------------------------

Example: Go to a Facebook profile and look in the address bar and find something like:

"<https://www.facebook.com/JohnDoe>". The username is simply "JohnDoe". The friendly name can be whatever you want.

Name	Facebook UID	Action
